A FRIDAY IN BILLINGSGATE.

Hucksters' Cries Which Make the Market a Babel of Competition.

The word "Billingsgate" has, strangely enough, been transferred from the place itself to the language spoken there, for Webster says, "The word is from a market of this name in London, celebrated for fish and foul language." A visit to this renowned fishmarket in these days will perhaps give one a better idea of the place than Webster's explanation.

There is considerable slang and good natured chaffing among the buyers and sellers, but one is not overwhelmed by that torrent of foul language he has been taught to expect from his associations with the word. The best time to visit the market is on a Friday morning. The wooden, barn looking square where the fish is sold is crowded soon after 6 o'clock with shiny cord jackets and greasy caps.

Everybody comes to Billingsgate in his worst clothes, and no one knows the length of time a coat can be worn until he has been to a fish sale. Over the hum of voices are heard the shouts of the salesmen, who, with the white aprons, peering above the heads of the mob, stand on the tables roaring out their prices. All are bawling together—salesmen and hucksters of provisions, hardware and newspapers—till the place is a perfect Babel of competition.

"Ha a-ansome cod! best in the market! All alive! alive! alive O!" "Ye-o-o! ye-o-o! here's your fine Yarmouth bloaters! Who's the buyer?" "Here you are, governor, splendid whiting! Some of the right sort!" "Turbot! turbot! All alive! Turbot!" "Glass o' nice peppermint, this cold morning! a ha'penny a glass!"

"Here you are at your own price! Fine soles O!" "Oy! Oy! Oy! Now's your time! Fine grizzling sprats! all large and no small!" "Hullo! hullo here! beautiful lobsters! good and cheap! fine crabs, all alive O!" "Five brill and one turbot! have that lot for a pound! Come and look at 'em, governor! you won't see a better sample in the market!" "Here, this way for splendid skate! skate O! skate O!"

"Had-had-had-haddick! all fresh and good!" "Currant and meat puddings! a ha'penny each!" "Now, you mussel buyers, come along! come along! come along! now's your time for fine fat mussels!" "Here's food for the belly and clothes for the back, but I sell food for the mind!" shouts the newsvender.

"Here's sucl't O! Here ye are, fine finny haddick!" "Hot soup! nice pea soup! all hot! hot!" "Ahoy! ahoy, here! live plaice! all alive O!" "Now or never! whelk! whelk! whelk! Who'll buy brill O! brill O!" "Eels O! eels O! Alive! alive O!" "Fine flounders, a shilling a lot! Who'll have this prime lot of flounders?"

"Shrimps! shrimps! fine shrimps! Wink! wink! wink!" "Hi! hi! here you are, just eight eels left—just eight!" "O ho! O ho! this way! this way! this way! Fish alive! alive! alive, O!"

This is a fair sample of what may be heard at Billingsgate on a fine Friday morning. But no ingenuity of printing can give any adequate conception of the peculiar intonation of the London fishmonger. That must be heard in order to be appreciated.—Pen and Pencil.

Have Good Teachers at First.

A professor of music, a teacher of reputation, has this to say: "No greater mistake is made than that committed by most parents in regard to their children's musical education. 'Until my daughter knows a good deal of music,' a mother will say 'any teacher will do. Later she can be polished by some high priced professor.' Only yesterday a woman, a friend of mine, who was discussing her little girl's music with me, said. 'I cannot afford to have —— begin with you, but she shall have a year or two at the end to finish her course.' And I told her if she could afford only a year of my tuition to let it be the first year. In that year the pupil can form habits, if properly taught, which no amount of poor teaching can do away with.

"It is foolish to bring a girl, at the end of ten years' unskilful teaching and wrong practicing, to somebody and expect him in a year or two years, or ever, indeed, to turn out an accomplished musician. A pupil should be well taught at the beginning at least—in my opinion she should be well taught all the way through. Girls who have any music in them are worth it, and girls who haven't ought never to approach the piano."

A Reporter's Way of Using Books.

On one occasion a pressman found, to his great annoyance, that he had no copy paper. His companion, a brother journalist, was almost as badly off, for he had only about a dozen slips and it was too late to send out from the hotel where the two were staying to get any. All the other inmates of the place were, indeed, in bed and asleep. The journalist's eye wandered around the room in search of something to spill ink on and at last looked fondly on a shelf of books in one corner. Then he went over and cruelly tore the blank leaves out of the beginning and end of every volume.—London Tit-Bits.

Dustmen on Cycles.

Soon we shall see dustmen on tricycles, but the machines are not constructed to carry the material yet. The authorities of St. Giles, Camberwell, have supplied their dust superintendents with tricycles, and already the experiment has proved a great success.—London Letter.

A POLICE MATRON.

Influence of a Womanly Woman Over a Despised and Hardened Outcast.

The work that a good woman can do for the fallen of her sex is well illustrated by a story related by Mrs. Barney in an address upon the subject of police matrons. She was once urging the necessity of such matrons upon the authorities of a certain city, when the chief of police said, "Well, if you could see one woman that comes in here three or four times a year—'Old Sal'!" It took four policemen, he said, to bring her into the cell, and usually they got their faces scratched. One morning Mrs. Barney was told that this woman had been put into a cell the previous night. "We would like to see you bring her into court," the police said. "If you can do that we shall believe in police matrons."

The chief offered to send two men to protect me, but I declined their services. As I reached the cell door I rapped with the key, and then unlocked the door and entered. There in the dark, narrow cell crouched the woman, looking more like a wild beast. She was just ready to spring, as she was expecting the police. She cried out:

"Who are you?"

"I am your friend," I replied.

"It's a lie!" she said. "I haven't got any friends."

"But I am your friend," I reiterated gently.

The woman laughed mockingly. "Who are you, anyway?"

"I am a police woman."

"Oh, I didn't know they had any such things," she said. "I never saw one before. What do you think you're goin' to do?"

"Help you." I replied simply; and as I stood there beside her I dropped my hands upon her shoulders, and calling her by her married name, I said, "You know you have to go into the court in a minute, and you are not fit to go."

I began to arrange her hair. I took a pin from my own hair. She hadn't a button or a pin or a fastening of any kind in her clothes. She sat there tugging to hold them together, and as I tried to dress her she said:

"Tell me what you are up to. Tell me what you mean."

Looking in her eyes I asked kindly, "Do you remember the first time you were ever in a police station?"

"Don't I remember it?"

"How old were you?"

"I wasn't sixteen then, and I am more than sixty now."

"How many times have you been in these places?"

"Oh, I don't know. I guess God don't know—it's so often."

"Do you remember how you felt the first time?"

"I was almost scared to death. I cried all night."

"Sally, if a good woman had been there and had wiped the tears off your face, and had put up your hair and had rested a motherly hand on your shoulder, as I have done today, what would it have meant to you?"

"Oh, I would never have gone back again, but nobody ever cared."

"Now, Sally, I want you to do something for me. I want to get a woman to go into these places to care for the women in the way I have suggested. Wouldn't you like to help me?"

"I would do anything I could to help you."

"The police think you will not go quietly into court with me this morning, but I'm sure you will."

We talked together a little while longer, and then came the call for us to go into court. As we rose from the bed where we had been sitting I said, "Will you take my arm, or shall I take yours?"

She looked me over and said, "Wal, I am about three times as large as you; I guess you'd better take mine."

So we went into court. The policemen said they would have cheered us if it had been proper, and one of them said that I had "bewitched Sally." And so the poor creature was bewitched, but only with gentle treatment and kind words.—Youth's Companion.

School Blunders.

A teacher in a public school gave out a list of words to be defined and put in sentences. Among them was the word "chasm." A little girl looked in the dictionary, and not being quite satisfied inquired if "chasm" meant "gap."

The teacher absently replied yes, but was astonished when she presented her paper with this sentence, "When I am sleepy I always chasm."

But this is hardly equal to another teacher's experience in a little district school some years ago. She gave out words for analysis. "Bank-note" was one of them, and the teacher's astonishment may be imagined when one young lady brought the following unique analysis:

"Bank-note" is a compound primitive word composed of 'bank' and 'note.' 'Bank' is a simple word, meaning the side of a stream; 'note,' to set down; 'bank-note,' to set down by the side of a stream."—Youth's Companion.

Defined.

A girl, who was a student at a school of technology, and who happened to be extremely slender, furnished a "chemical analysis" of herself, which, after enumerating several articles of clothing in the style of chemical ingredients, ended with the item:

"Of girl, a trace."—Youth's Companion.

In the Art Gallery.

"I don't see any of Jones's work in the gallery."

"No; what does he draw?"

"Teeth!"—New York Truth.

A Youngster's Retort.

Among the crowd watching the firemen at work on the burning Sixth avenue car stables stood a young swell. "Why are those firemen taking it easy upon the roof instead of going to work?" he growled.

As his remark seemed to be addressed to no one in particular, a little boy, with bare feet and a very dirty face, volunteered the information that the firemen referred to were not "taking it easy," but had crawled out of the smoke for a breath of fresh air. "Dey couldn't live, boss, if dey staid in dere right 'long," he said.

"Wait until you are spoken to," said the dandified young man, at the same time tapping the boy on the shins with a cane he carried. The little fellow knew his brown fist was no match for the heavy headed walking stick and said nothing, but the light in his bright young eyes spoke volumes.

In a brief space of time the young man had forgotten all about the occurrence and again spoke aloud, this time addressing his remark to a pretty girl who stood at his side: "I'm glad I'm not a fireman. I couldn't be one, don't you know; I really couldn't."

Immediately the thin voice of the small boy replied: "Naw, yer couldn't. They only has brave fellers in de fire department, an' a feller of yer size as would hit a little un like me ain't no good, see!" At this outburst the pretty young lady turned a rosy red, and her escort evidently wished her many miles away as he fondled his cane and glared at the grinning face of the retreating boy.—New York Advertiser.

Corrected by the Office Boy.

In one of our large establishments connected with the iron industry there occurred an apparent discrepancy in the accounts involving a matter of 3,000 pounds of scrap iron. The clerks of the department were set to work to unravel the tangled skein, and after they had expended two whole days in the search they were compelled to give up the task and pronounce it beyond their comprehension. Thus matters stood for several days.

Several days later the office boy decided to keep himself in practice in addition by footing up a column of figures on a sheet which was lying on a desk beside him in the scrap iron department. Bending his energies to the task he got along swimmingly with the units, tens and hundreds columns, but when he came to the fourth column he could not make it agree with the footings set down. Again and again he tried it and with the same result—3,000 less.

Going over the figures one by one his attention was drawn to a queer looking one. A fly speck was beside it in such a position as to make it appear like a four, and as such it had been counted by each of the clerks in the department. The boy had earned his promotion, and he got it.—Philadelphia Record.

Wary Antelope.

In early days, before the game of the prairies became educated to the wiles of the white man, it was easy to flag an antelope and lure him to his ruin. A white or red rag tied to a stick and allowed to flutter in the breeze would bring a herd of antelope. Even the white canvas of a prairie schooner would then so excite the curiosity of a herd that they would approach near enough for the teamster to shoot two or three.

Since those days, however, the antelope, owing to the relentless war waged against him, has become so wary that he not only restrains his own curiosity, but prevents the hunter from approaching within 600 yards. A guide, scout, hunter, trapper and Indian fighter, known as Livereating Johnson, while hunting with the writer of an article contributed to "The Big Game of North America," said to him:

"What a live antelope don't see between dawn and dark isn't visible from his standpoint, and 'while you're a-gawkin' at him through that 'ere glass, to make out whether he's a rock or a goat, he's a-countin' your cartridges and fixin's, and makin' up his mind which way he'll scoot when you disappear in the draw for to sneak on 'im."

A Cabman as a Linguist.

An interesting old London cabman has been interviewed in his retirement. He gave many reminiscences of his life on the box, and one of his statements was especially characteristic, I think. He was asked to name the most profitable season he had ever experienced, and he unhesitatingly replied, "The season of 1862, the second great exhibition year." It appears that for this event and the expected influx of foreigners our cabman made special linguistic preparations. He managed, after considerable trouble and at some little expense, to learn off by heart the words, "My fare is a shilling more!" in no less than twenty-five different foreign languages.—London Figaro.

To Prevent Iron Rust.

An Italian paper says that iron articles can be protected from rust by sinking them near the negative pole of an electric bath composed of twenty quarts of water and seventy-five grains of chloride of manganese and about seven ounces of nitrate of ammonia. Under the influence of the current the bath deposits on the articles a film of manganese, and prevents them from rusting.

An End of Servitude.

Mrs. Bloomer—Did you ever! Miss De Talent, the wonderful actress, has married her manager.

Mr. Bloomer—I presume she got tired of being managed.—New York Weekly.

SONOMA, OCTOBER 3, 1891.

THE HIGH SCHOOL AGAIN.

MR. EDITOR:

Your correspondents "I. X. L," "Lola" and all the rest of them, and may be yourself included, are kicking against our High School like mules, but mind you, when their hind heels get sore they will have to quit of themselves. I don't kick. I never kick against anybody or anything. What is the use of kicking anyhow? What for?

Some people in Sonoma Valley are like Bill Nye, who says that we have too much liberty, more liberty that we have money. But then Bill is a billions old cuss, a pessimist who sees everything through smoked glass. I do not care much for wealth, but I must have freedom. I love to have the freedom to pay taxes—taxes for Uncle Sam, taxes for the State of California, taxes for Sonoma county, taxes for the City of Sonoma, taxes for the indigents and old bums to keep them in comfort without working, taxes for our High School, so that your boys and my girls, and everybodys boys and girls may become schoolmarms or gamblers or preachers or loafers, or scientists or ladies of ease or whatever they may have a liking to. I don't want them to work. Not I. We owe them an easy living. Let the Chinamen do our work. It takes a man of leisure to enjoy such liberty, but your correspondents seem to have no leisure at all. They growl and scrowl and kick. Quit that gentlemen!

FREEDOM AND LIBERTY.

SOME people are born freckled and others have freckles thrust upon them. The former class might as well accept their freckles as a dispensation of providence for them. The latter can always get rid of their affliction by using a couple of drachms of sal ammoniac with an ounce of German sologne, the solution mixed with a pint of distilled water. Applied two or three times a day it will cure the worst case of acquired freckles on record.

THE man who plants a vine and nourishes it can sit under its shade and pluck its fruit for many years. The largest grapevine in the world is that growing at Oys, Portugal, which has been bearing since 1802. Its maximum yield was in 1884, in which year it produced a sufficient quantity of grapes to make 195 gallons of wine.

Serious Danger

Threatens every man, woman or child living in a region of country where fever and ague is prevalent, since the germs of malarial disease are inhaled from the air and are swallowed from the water of such a region. Medical safeguard is absolutely necessary to nullify this danger. As a means of fortifying and acclimating the system so as to be able to assist the malarial poison, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is incomparably the best and the most popular. Irregularities of the stomach, liver and bowels encourage malaria; but these are speedily rectified by the bitters. The functions of digestion and secretion are assisted by its use, and a vigorous as well as regular condition of the system promoted by it. Constitution and physique are thus defended against the inroads of malaria by this matchless preventive, which is also a certain and thorough remedy in the worst cases of intermittent and remittent fevers.

After Many Years.

In the year 1400, or thereabouts, workmen were employed to put choir stalls in Lincoln cathedral, England, and were told in the early English vernacular of the day to hurry the job up, as several big functions were soon to come off. But lots of things happened; money got to be exceedingly scarce, and the men weren't paid very promptly. Although there were no Knights of Labor then, human nature was pretty much the same as it is now, and the men knocked off, remarking, "No pay, no work."

The clergy were so busy running the county political machine that they didn't have time to arrange the matter, and the finishing of the stalls was postponed from time to time until the present day. At last, however, dean and chapter think they see their way to complete this Fifteenth century job, and are calling for estimates from woodcarvers. England is a little slow, but she does get there after a few centuries.—New York Tribune.

The Germans and Parisian Society.

French feeling against Germany runs very high at the present moment. A member of the German embassy in Paris, who was recently over here, complained bitterly of the social ostracism to which he and his colleagues are subjected at the hands of the most polite nation of Europe. No section of Parisian society asks them out except to purely official entertainments; they belong to no clubs, and would certainly be blackballed if they ventured to put up for any. The events connected with the unfortunate visit of the Empress Frederick, and the part the German embassy played in her ill advised expedition to Versailles, have, of course, embittered the social relations of French and Germans in Paris not a little.—Pall Mall Gazette.

"Rats!"

Lew Hayes, of Morgantown, W. Va., relates that a few days ago, while passing along the road near Collin's ferry, he noticed two large Norway rats going down a hill toward a stream, each rat holding an end of a straw. When they reached the water's edge the foremost rat waded in, still leading its companion, which, when it reached the water, stopped and drank eagerly. When the thirsty animal had finished drinking the other turned, and with the straw still in its mouth led the way to the top of the bank. When they reached the road Hayes killed the led rat, and found that it was totally blind, its eyes being completely gone.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Four of a Family Buried Together.

Four of the family of Adam H. Sconce, living about fifteen miles from Salem, Or., were buried side by side Sunday, all having died of la grippe. A young daughter died at 12 o'clock Friday night; at 1:20 her mother followed. The next night at 12 o'clock the father died, and at 1:20 o'clock his mother passed away.—San Francisco Bulletin.

CUCUMBER and ELDER FLOWER CREAM.

Is not a cosmetic in the sense in which that term is popularly used, but permanently beautifies. It creates a soft, smooth, clear, velvety skin, and by daily use gradually makes the complexion several shades whiter. It is a constant protection from the effects of sun and wind, and prevents sun burns and freckles, and blackheads will not come while you use it. It advances the face far better than soap and water, nourishes and builds up the skin tissues and thus prevents the formation of wrinkles. It gives the freshness, clearness and smoothness of the skin that you had when a little girl. Every lady, young or old ought to use it, as it gives a more youthful appearance to any lady, and that permanently. It contains no acid, powder or alkali and is as harmless as dew and as nourishing to the skin as dew is to the flower. Price $1.00, at all druggists and hair-dressers, or at Mrs. Gervaise Graham's establishment, 104 Post Street San Francisco, where she treates ladies for all blemishes of the face and figure. Ladies at a distance treated by letter. Send stamp for her little book "How to be Beautiful."

Thieves entered C. W. Engelbert's butcher shop last Sunday night and stole a quantity of canned goods and bologna sausage. An entrance was effected through a wire screen door, the inner door having been left open. The theft is supposed to have been committed, not by tramps, but by parties right here in town.

The dwelling of Mrs. Winkle, widow of the late Henry Winkle, located about two miles east of town, caught fire yesterday afternoon between twelve and one o'clock, and was burned to the ground. Owing to the efforts of her neighbors, Messrs. Gundlach and Dresel and their employees a portion of the furniture was saved. The loss is between $1500 and $2000. Insurance unknown.

The friends of Mr. J. Biggins congratulated him upon his return from Stockton for his showing of five thoroughbred horses at the Petaluma, Oakland, Sacramento and Oakland Fairs. Sonoma Boy, bred on Mr. Biggins' farm near this place, won first premium at all the above fairs, and Fanny Parnell took the first premium at Petaluma, Oakland and Stockton. The mare being sick at Sacramento she was not entered for the prize in that city. Mr. Biggins has some of the finest horses in the State, and recently sold to Dan McCarthy, the well-known horseman, his racing mare Fanny Parnell and her colt Secret.

A stranger, evidently badly crackedd, dressed in flaming red pants, sky blue vest and a vari-colored overcoat, made his appearance in Sonoma last Saturday afternoon and visited a large number of dwellings. He claimed to have some kind of preparation for coal oil lamps, and upon being refused admittance would pull out a memorandum book and jotting a few words down, would turn to the lady of the house and bowing himself away remark, "Well I'll report you at the office." In one house he was given a lamp and after pouring a white powder into the same remarked that it would make the sick lamp well again. The last seen of him he was heading towards Santa Rosa.

Constable Sparks arrested a thick-lipped ivory-toothed negro last Thursday afternoon, on suspicion of robbing a Chinese house on the Shaw place early on the morning of that day. Sambo was given free lodgings in the Hote de Sparks for the night. The witnesses against him failing to appear the next morning, when his case was called in Justice Cheney's Court, the darkey was discharged and left the court room with a broad grin on his sable countenance. An amuseing incident occurred soon after the arrest. Sambo, when submitting to being searched by the officer, rolled his eyes up until nothing but the whites could be seen and raising his hands high in the air, exclaimed: "So help me God, boss, Ise hasn't got nuffin'." But just the same, it was less than ten minutes after he had been searched that the darkey, while sitting in the court room, unthinkingly put his hand into one of his pockets and pulling out a large sized jack-knife, leaned back contentedly in a chair and picked his teeth with the same.

RESULT OF A HASTY BLOW.

Otto Gatje Slowly Bleeding to Death from Being Struck on the Nose.

Albert Estes the Assailant---A Very Remarkable Case.

Otto Gatje, a clerk in the Union Hotel at this place, and a brother-in-law of Adolph Zeller, the proprietor, has been slowly bleeding to death from the nose since ten o'clock last Monday night, and up to this writing (Friday noon) the flow of blood has continued without interruption. Although several doctors have been in constant attendance the past four days, medical skill has failed to stop the hemorrhage, and it looks as though the injured man will die. The poor fellow lies propped up in his bed in the Union Hotel, and hourly growing weaker. On the night and hour above mentioned Albert Estes, a barkeeper in the Sonoma House, entered the Union Hotel, and made an unprovoked assault upon Mr. Gatje, who is a quiet and inoffensive man, and struck him one blow with his bare fist in the face. Blood immediately gushed from the injured man's nose and he was removed to his room. The following morning Estes was arrested on a charge of battery and carrying a concealed weapon and taken before Justice Cheney, who admitted him to bail in the sum of $50, with Mr. Martin Muldry and Mr. Louis Litzius as sureties. The condition of the injured man becoming worse on Wednesday his bondsmen delivered him up and Judge Cheney raised his bail to $500, which was furnished by H Appleton and H. C. Lafferty. Estes' examination is set for next Monday.

It appears that Mr. Gatje, who is a young married man, has been subject to profuse hemorrhages from the nose for a number of years

Yesterday morning a consultation of doctors was held and Gatje's condition being considered precarious Estes was again re-arrested and his bail raised to $2,000. Failing to secure bondsmen he was taken to Santa Rosa, where he now lies in jail awaiting the result of Gatje's injury.

Estes has secured the services of M. B. Harrison, a leading attorney of this place, as his counsel.

Payment of City Taxes.

City Marshal and Tax Collector Sparks gives notice in another column that the city taxes for the current fiscal year on all personal property, and one-half the taxes on real property will be due and payable next Monday. The first installment on real estate taxes for city purposes, under the new law, becomes delinquent on the third Monday in November, after which a penalty of 15 per cent is added for delinquency, and if not paid before the first Monday of February an additional 5 per cent will be added thereto. The second installment is due on the first Monday of January and will be delinquent on the first Monday of February, after which 5 per cent will be added for delinquency. If tax-payers so desire they can pay the whole tax when the first installment becomes due.

The State and County Tax Levy $1.15.

The Supervisors met in Santa Rosa last Monday, all the members being present, and made the following tax levy: Indigent Fund, .045; Bond Fund, .0675; General Fund, .2795; School Fund, .112; Road Fund, .20; total, .7040. This added to the State rate, which is .446, makes the total State and County tax $1.15.

The Grand Jury.

The following gentlemen have been impanneled as Grand Jurors. It will be observed that Sonoma Township is not represented: Jas. Austin, foreman; Smith E. Davison, David T. ### A FORMER RESIDENT OF SONOMA

He Masquerades as a "Culled" Lady and Comes to Grief.

Ed. Livernash, formerly a resident of this place, and at one time proprietor of this paper, has made himself ridiculous in San Francisco. On Saturday afternoon last he was arrested at the ferries while masquerading as a negress. He carried a satchel in his hand which proved to contain a pound bottle of chloroform, two bottles of the same size labeled prussic acid and a razor. When first taken to the city prison he gave his name as George Jones and said he had disguised himself for the purpose of playing a joke on a lady friend. He afterwards admitted that his name was E. J. Livernash, and that he formerly published and edited newspapers in Cloverdale, Sonoma and Healdsburg in this county, and that at the present time he was the owner of the Livermore Herald which he bought a few months ago for $2,000.

After being taken to the City Prison and locked up young Livernash, who is none other than the son-in-law of the wealthy Judge Overton of Santa Rosa, he having married the Judge's only child less than a year ago, offered the following explanation of his strange conduct. "I came to town to-day to meet my brother, and by appointment met him at the Lick House, where I have had a room for several days. I intended to return home by the 4:30 o'clock train, having business needing attention there to-morrow.

"I have been feeling unwell for several days, and felt especially so to-day. I happened to inhale a little chloroform recently during one of my spells of restlessness, and I liked the results, save for the after effects. So this morning I bought some of the preparation and put it in a small grip, intending to take it home with me. But when I found myself unusually ill after luncheon I concluded not to use the drug, fearing that it would do more harm than good. I didn't pour the stuff away, but intended to.

"I went to bed in my room and on arising felt right and well. Then it was that I determined to play a joke I had been planning for a fortnight or so. It was this: To dress as a negress and apply for service to a lady friend in this city, who shall be nameless. I dressed and was about to go to her home when I remembered that I ought to save a friend of mine from an unnecessary journey in search of me, so I went directly to the ferry in search of my friend. Not finding him I supposed he had gone aboard the steamer. I arose to get a ticket to Oakland and return in order to meet him, but I was conscious of being much stared at and grew ashamed of my folly and concluded to back down, get into a corner of the car and return home without further nonsense. I bought a ticket and as I boarded the car I was arrested.

"As to the acid found in my grip, I placed it there to-day to avoid the risk of accident from having it in my bureau. I bought it in quantity of a wholesaler, and intended to use a little of it in testing for myself a statement made to by the friend last mentioned as to plating silver and gold.

"I took the grip as it was for the sake of having something in hand and merely added to its contents a few trifles needed in my masquerade and a razor I had just bought and did not wish to leave it on the bureau top."

Livernash, who is evidently a victim of temporary insanity, was subsequently tried before Judge Joachimsen and convicted for wearing female attire.

A Fatal Accident.

Friday another dreadful accident occurred in Vallejo township, in which Don Marshall, a young man about 20 years of age, lost his life. He was working for P. Murphy and was engaged in hauling hay to town. When going down a hill his team became frightened and ran away, throwing him out and the wheels of the wagon passed over his body. He was brought to this city for medical treatment, but died this morning from the effects of his injuries.—Petaluma Imprint.

Glen Ellen.

The weather is quite windy here and seems to be all dust and no gravel.

Quail shooters are beginning to make their appearance. The law expired yesterday.

John P. Peters was in Glen Ellen last Wednesday looking after the interests of the Pleasant ranches.

The Sunset Telephone Company have established a telephone line from the farm of Kohler & Frohling to Glen Ellen.

The enterprising firm of Borman & Jordan have purchased a new billiard table. We have crack players here by the score.

Postmaster Poppe has put in twenty new lock boxes in the Post Office. They are quite an improvement on the old ones.

Dr. C. C. O'Donnell has purchased 500 acres of land from the Sonoma County Land and Improvement Company, adjoining his farm.

C. H. Crofoot has moved his saloon into the hotel. He is doing a rushing business and has made the removal a matter of convenience.

W. H. Dobbyns, the newly appointed guager, was down last Tuesday from Santa Rosa looking after the many distilleries in this vicinity.

Wine making has fairly begun and grape teams are kept busy. Kohler & Frohling, J. Chauvet and M. Peter are the principal manufacturers.

The special tax of $600 for building a school house in the Enterprise School District was defeated last Tuesday by a majority of five. It seems Enterprise has no use for book "larnin' and eddication.'

Jottings from Our Regular Correspondent.

Mrs. Cady has returned from a visit to Santa Rosa.

Miss Florence Heggie left for the metropolis Wednesday of last week.

Mr. Cady has been sojourning at the Baldwin, San Francisco, for several days.

Miss T. Goess has been enjoying a visit from her sisters Mrs. Keating and Mrs. Smith.

It's an ill rain that doesn't do some good. But we are careful to make no inquries about the vintage.

Mrs. J. B. Morris, accompained by Miss Katie Morris and Master Eddie, spent Tuesday in Petaluma.

The fine roads now tempt all to enjoy the delightful air and varied scenery of this most beautiful season of the waning year.

The Misses Madison have returned to San Francisco after a brief visit at the hospitable home of their nephew J. H. Madison.

The "Inseparables" have been separated for a brief space by force of circumstances. But absence makes the heart grow fonder.

Mr. Tom Morris returned from the metropolis on Monday evening of last week in high health and spirits, his injured foot troubling him but little.

Mrs. Harry Madison went to the county seat on Monday with her husband (who is still on jury duty) returning with Mr. and Mrs Heggie on Tuesday evening, the two latter having driven to that place early in the day.

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to clense the system gently in the Spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

A Lady Burned to Death Near Santa Rosa.

A dispatch from Santa Rosa says that Mrs. Phillips, living with her brothers, John and William Illingsworth, near that city, was burned to death on Monday night last, while trying to save her invalid mother from the flames. It seems Mrs. Phillips was in the habit of sleeping with her mother, and during the night the oil-lamp steam attachment and pipes heating the bed and room exploded. The room and bed were soon wrapped in flames. John Illingsworth, who sleeps on the lower floor, rushed into the room and carried out his mother, who escaped injury. The clothing of Mrs. Phillips, while she was trying to lift her mother out of bed, caught on fire, and she rushed from the house, her blazing garments fanned by the breeze, which was strong at the time, burning the flesh to a crisp. She lived five hours, dying in fearful agony.

Mrs. Clancy of Tiburon is visiting friends in Sonoma.

An attempt was made a few nights ago to burn the fine livery stable of Elmer Ludwig in Santa Rosa, no doubt the work of some crank.

The large residence of Mrs. Loud on Broadway is vacant, and will be rented very reasonable. Inquire at this office.

No more handsome present can be given than a fine life size crayon picture. Get Henry Baron to do one and have it for a Christmas present the coming holidays.

For Dry Goods, Clothing, Groceries, Hardware, Cutlery, and in fact everything kept in a general merchandise store go to S. Schocken's, north side Plaza. *

Hamlin's Love for New England.

There have been few public men of whom so many good stories have been told as are told of Hannibal Hamlin. His was one of those sturdy, outspoken, independent natures that was bound to make the life of its possessor replete with incidents characteristic of the man. The epigrammatic answers made by the "Old Carthaginian" during the course of his life would make a most interesting collection if they could be brought together.

"What can you grow here?" inquired a distinguished English agriculturist of him one day as they were traveling along the rockbound coast of Maine.

"We can raise men here," was the proud response of the sturdy son of the Pine Tree state.

The old man was a most sincere believer in New England and its institutions. He regarded the old states as the balance wheels for the rest of the country. In one of the finest speeches he ever delivered in congress he said in an impassioned burst of eloquence: "I glory in New England and in New England's institutions. There she stands, with her free schools and her free labor, her fearless enterprise, her indomitable energy; with her rocky hills, her torrent streams, her green valleys, her heaven pointed spires—there she stands, a moral monument around which the gratitude of her country binds the wreath of fame, while protected freedom shall repose forever at its base."—New York Times.

An Oregon Farmer's Scheme for Flying.

A Walla Walla "farmer" writes that he thinks the new fangled flying machines he reads so much about in the papers are too expensive to be of any practical use. He suggests the "training of ducks, geese, sea gulls or other birds not heavy in body, but rapid flying; make a very light rack or open platform of bamboo rods, hitch the fowls to the same in some way that the legs and wings would be free when flying, which could be easily done, then have a basket fastened beneath the bamboo rack. The weight in all would not be over fifteen pounds.

"Now, say the game selected for this purpose each can lift its own weight (two pounds), of course it would require 100 fowls in order to lift the weight of a person (150 pounds), including the material. Now, if game could be trained (I have no doubt it can), some professor might work it up. It would not cost $40,000; no steam or fuel are required. If some one should make it work, I hope his first trip will be to Walla Walla; if not, he won't be out much, because the game ought to sell for some figure. But you know the power is there, and it is about the only way I see flying could be made possible."—Portland Oregonian.

Work Did It.

It is not necessary that a boy who learns a trade should follow it all his life. Senator Palmer, of Illinois, was a country blacksmith once. President Lincoln was raised on a farm and split rails. President Johnson was a tailor in Tennessee. President Garfield drove mules on a canal. Jay Gould was a surveyor's assistant. John D. Rockefeller was a bookkeeper. Erastus Corning, too lame to do hard labor, commenced as a shopboy in Albany. When he applied for employment first he was asked, "Well, my little boy, what can you do?" "Can do what I am bid," was the answer. That secured him a place.

Ex-Governor Stone, of Iowa, was a cabinet maker, at which trade the late Hon. Stephen A. Douglas also worked in his youth. Large numbers of prominent men now living have risen from humble life by dint of industry, without which talent is as useless as a gold coin on a barren island. Work alone makes men bright, and it does not depend on the kind of work you have to do whether you rise or not. It depends on how you do it.—New York Recorder.

Billions of Matches.

Europe, continental and insular, consumes 2,000,000,000 matches daily. Assuming that each several act of ignition occupies the brief period of one second—and we have reason to believe it is rarely performed in a shorter period—it will be obvious to every ready reckoner that 555,000 hours of each successive day are spent by the inhabitants of Europe in striking matches.

There is food for much speculation in the fact that Europeans dispose of nearly sixty-four years per day in scraping tiny sticks tipped with some inflammable composition. It is also interesting to learn that 400,000 cubic yards of timber and 420,000 pounds' weight of phosphorous are in annual request for the manufacture of the 730,000,000,000 matches used by Europe in a year.—London Tit-Bits.

No Pearls and Swine Here.

It was only four little withered daisies that some one had dropped in Battery park.

Although they were at my feet I had not noticed them. I was sitting on a bench watching the water and the gay passing crowds. But when a little girl stopped in front of me and began carefully to pick them up I noticed them.

"I am going to take them to Lizzie," she said to a second little girl; and she fondled the little faded and forgotten blossoms as if they were the rarest kinds of orchids.

Four little withered daisies, and the fields bestarred with them! Yet Lizzie, the little invalid of the tenements, would find life brighter for seeing them.

Whether Lizzie got any finer flowers that day I refuse to tell.—New York Herald.

"German Syrup"

A Farmer at Edom, Texas, Says:

"We are six in family. We live in a place where we are subject to violent Colds and Lung Troubles. I have used German Syrup for six years successfully for Sore Throat, Cough, Cold, Hoarseness, Pains in the Chest and Lungs, and spitting-up of Blood. I have tried many different kinds of cough Syrups in my time, but let me say to anyone wanting such a medicine—German Syrup is the best. That has been my experience. If you use it once, you will go back to it whenever you need it. It gives total relief and is a quick cure. My advice to everyone suffering with Lung Troubles is—Try it. You will soon be convinced. In all the families where your German Syrup is used we have no trouble with the Lungs at all. It is the medicine for this country. John Franklin Jones.

THE Bravest 500 OF '61,

A Wonderful Book made from the records of the War Department.

COMPILED BY BVT. BRIG.-GEN. T. F. Rodenbough.

Of the 2,778,304 men enlisted in the Union Army and Navy, 1861-5, a little less than 500 were especially recognized by the War Dept., as coming under the Act of Congress, July 12, 1862, for distinguished bravery, which gave them the United States Medal of Honor.

Many of the stories, told by the heroes themselves, of how they won the high distinction, are extremely interesting. That the records of these deeds are almost unknown to their countrymen, but lie buried in the pigeon holes of the War Dept., and in the recesses of their own breasts, seems astonishing.

This book must find a wide sale, for it is full of incidents that will interest every old soldier in the land, and our boys will glory in it. It is an 8vo volume of over 500 pages, with nearly 100 excellent illustrations, made specially for the work.

It reeks of its time and deserves a place in the library of all who would not altogether forget the glorious past.
